Dear Techno-Anthropology Researchers,

As a sequel to the seminar organized by Plan in January 2018, we hereby present the program for the second annual TANT research seminar.

This year, the seminar will be organized by the department of Learning and will take place on 31st January 2019, 12:30-15:00.

The aim of the seminar is to bring together the techno-anthropology research groups and environments that support and contribute to the TANT teaching program. This year, we will focus on the landscape of theories that may inform techno-anthropological work. The seminar will facilitate discussion among the participants. For this reason, some parts of the activities will be video-linked between the campuses, while other parts will be local.

31st January 2019 (both campuses) 12:30 - 15:00
In Aalborg, the seminar will take place in room 3.429 i Rendsburggade. In Copenhagen, it will be in room 2.3.044 i ACM 15.

12:30 General introduction by Torben Elgaard Jensen and presentation of the coordination committee’s plans for joint portal homepage for the techno-anthropology research environments at AAU

12:30 - 12:45 Introduction of the discussion topic by Tom Børsen:
Theory landscapes of Techno-Anthropology

12:45 - 13:45 Group discussions

13:45 - 14:00 Break

14:00 - 14:15 Feedback from the groups and plenary discussion

14:15 - 15:00 Wrap up

Note: The seminar is shortened compared to the original intention of having a full day seminar. This is due to staff reduction at the department of Learning, which will be announced at the day of the seminar or the day before. The revised program includes only one presentation from a Learning employee and will be carried out under all circumstances.

On behalf of the Techno-Anthropology Research Group
The department of Learning - Torben Elgaard Jensen