AROUND CORNERS - NOTES AND PERFORMANCE HISTORY

NOTE ON THE WORKS:

Both pieces in the series AROUND CORNERS are put together by a collective decision process between musicians. When an element has been played, every musician is free to take initiative and propose a new element through a hand-sign, indicating the number (out of 5) and forward/backward direction. The structure permits both short and longer elements. Some elements have space for gradual, complex developments, and yet the music may change quickly. The pieces are for ensemble ad lib. and notated with graphic/verbal means.

Around Corners 1 may be the most difficult to play due to the complexity of developments demanded for, so it is recommended to start with number 2.
