6. References on your teaching skills from superiors or colleagues. Teaching evaluations and any teaching awards received.

Student evaluations from a single year:

"I voted for Brady Wagoner (as teacher of the year). His slides are nicely structured and he is, if any, the most humble teacher we have had on 1st semester in psychology. Furthermore, he is extremely good at teaching and he is probably the teacher I have gained most knowledge from. Also he is warm, kind and motivates you to listen to his lectures all the way through."

"Brady is capable of making complicated points easy to understand. He is good at using different things in his lectures e.g. he has used a film in social psychology and he has taken the master students to the zoo. Furthermore, he is a great supervisor who is really good at guiding and helping his students but still giving them the freedom to shape the projects in their way."

"Not only is Brady a great teacher who masters reaching everyone, he can also gain our attention no matter what topic he teaches on the day. He combines the academic with relevance, entertainment and students' involvements. He is always 110% prepared, he gets through all of the curriculum for the day and he is always 120% fresh and happy. No matter at what time a day you can always count on his positive mindset to light up a bunch of 180 tired young people."

"Brady is always extremely open-minded for new master students."

"Brady Wagoner (for teacher of the year) because he and his colleagues at Cultural Psychology (especially Carolin Demuth and Jaan Valsiner) do everything they can to make sure that their students are thriving and have the best possible conditions for both their personal and professional development."

"I chose Brady Wagoner (as teacher of the year) because he is enthusiastic about his material. Furthermore, he is always funny, speaks slowly and clearly and it seems like he has a great interest in us students. In brief he is good at sustaining my interest during lectures despite the topics sometimes are really difficult."

"Brady Wagoner (for teacher of the year) because I think his lectures are the absolute easiest ones to understand!"

7. Personal reflections and initiatives: Here you may state any personal deliberations as regards teaching and supervision, any wishes and plans for further pedagogical development, plans for following up on student feedback/evaluations, etc. Personal reflections on your own pedagogical practice, including objectives, methods and implementation. This should include an analysis and a reasoned description of your pedagogical activities in relation to your pedagogical understanding and student learning. Thoughts on the teaching method at Aalborg University (which is largely based on group-organised project work and problem-based learning)
